

What is a Screen Reader?

A screen reader is software that converts the text displayed on a computer screen into speech or Braille, allowing low vision or blind users to access and interact with digital content. The software reads aloud the text on the screen, including alternative text for images, and allows users to navigate through websites, documents, and applications using keyboard commands or touch gestures.